What a result

Malavya Ashok, 16, Beatrix Webb, 16, and Taylor Pham, 16, celebrate after getting their GCSE results at Clapton Girls' Academy on 21 August

HACKNEY students celebrated their exam results this month, with A-level results bucking a national downward trend. Young people achieved an average 98 per cent pass rate – the same as last year – while nationwide A-level results dipped for the first time in over 30 years. Many of the borough's schools and academies also saw pupils produce many outstanding individual GCSE results – including those at The City

Academy, Hackney, where 91 per cent of its first ever cohort of pupils achieved five or more A* to C grades. See pages 7-9.

The Council's new Cycle Loan Scheme allows residents to borrow a bicycle for a month for just £10

Get on your bike!

RESIDENTS can borrow a bicycle for one month for just £10 thanks to a new scheme designed to get more people to start cycling.

At the end of the four weeks, the Council's Cycle Loan Scheme allows participants to buy the bike at a discounted price, which can be paid off in three instalments over six months.

As well as a quality bicycle, residents can also borrow a helmet, lock, lights, child seat and other accessories at no extra cost.

Residents can try out the types of loan bikes available, talk to experts about the scheme and get more information about all the Council's cycling initiatives at a launch event outside Hackney Town Hall, between 11am and 2pm, on 27 August.

Cllr Feryal Demirci,

“If you're thinking about taking up cycling... then this is the perfect opportunity to try cycling before you buy the bike”

Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “If you're thinking about taking up cycling – whether for fitness, fun or commuting – then this is the perfect opportunity to try cycling before you buy the bike.

“Hackney is London's ‘cycling borough’ and we're determined to get more people in the saddle enjoying the health and economic benefits cycling brings.”

A range of men's and women's bikes are available in various sizes, which are suitable for most terrains, as well as for commuting and leisure. Folding bikes are also available, which can be taken on public transport.

The Council also provides free cycle training for all those who live, work or study in Hackney, including new drop-in lessons on Saturdays from 10am at Hackney Downs, or on Sundays from 10am at Petchey Academy, in Shacklewell Lane.

How does the Cycle Loan Scheme work?

- Register online at: www.hackney.gov.uk/cycle-loan
- Wait to be contacted by an adviser who will discuss which type of bike is suitable
- Collect the new bike at a given location and date
- Take ID, proof of address and £10 and cycle away
- At the end of the month, bring the bike back or choose to buy it at a reduced price
- The scheme is open to Hackney residents aged 18+
- There is no limit to the use of the bike, but the loan is for four weeks only as it is likely there will be a waiting list
- If the bike is stolen contact the police to obtain a crime reference number
- If the bike is damaged contact the Council.

News in brief

Get fit and healthy for free across Hackney's parks

FREE fitness classes are running in parks across the borough until 5 October.

Residents tired of solo jogs or who want a change from the gym can try a series of fun and invigorating group sessions – including boot camp and box fit – in one of the participating parks.

Most of the activities are for over 16s, but there are also family as well as women-only sessions.

The classes, which offer light to moderate workouts, will take place at: Clissold Park, Hackney Downs, London Fields, Mabley Green, Millfields, Shoreditch Park, Springfield Park and St John-at-Hackney Churchyard. Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care & Culture, said: "It's literally fun and games in Hackney as we give you the chance to improve your fitness in one of our parks and, best of all, it's for free."

To take part, sign up at: www.ourparks.org.uk; or call: 0800 1114 464. Timetables will also be displayed within participating parks as well as libraries and leisure centres.

Residents can book from a series of fun group sessions for free

First-time market traders set to be given free pitches

FIRST-time traders will have the opportunity to test the market for their goods as part of a new Council initiative. The pilot scheme, set to launch on 1 September, will give new traders a free pitch at Hackney's six markets for a period of four days.

Existing market traders can also benefit by receiving a free day pitch fee if they introduce a new trader.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "We want to encourage new traders to join our markets, adding to their ongoing success and popularity. We understand that pitching-up in a new area can sometimes be daunting, so this new initiative reduces some of that financial risk by providing trading days free-of-charge."

Coming full circle

PEOPLE aged 60 and over are invited to join a free membership scheme which gives access to a range of free events, activities and special offers in cafes, restaurants and cultural venues in and around Dalston.

The Hackney Circle is set to launch on 17 September at the Dalston CLR James Library. The nine-week pilot scheme aims to help older residents build wider friendships within the community by providing social spaces for the borough's over 60s.

Events include a film

“The Hackney Circle is a great way for residents over the age of 60 to socialise and visit new places” screening at the Rio Cinema of the documentary 'Fabulous Fashionistas', which explores the 'art' of ageing; a Mediterranean-themed party at the Dalston Eastern Curve Garden; a performance of Orson Welles' 'Misbehaving' at the Arcola devised by the theatre's over 60s group; and a month-long programme of photo preservation workshops at the Hackney Archives.

Members will also receive a booklet packed with offer vouchers for cafes, restaurants and leisure activities that will introduce older residents to places they may have never visited before, where they can socialise with other people from all age groups.

Participating venues will have Hackney Circle branded chairs which are upholstered to make visiting them a more comfortable experience for older people.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Dalston has changed a lot in recent years and is one of the most exciting places in London."

"It's really important that everyone is able to enjoy all the great things, new and established, that are on offer in the area, no matter what their age.

"The Hackney Circle is a great way for residents over 60 to socialise and visit new places while being made to feel comfortable and included.

I would like to encourage residents to head to the Dalston CLR James Library to find out more."

The Hackney Circle has been set up by the Council following feedback from the area's older residents.

It has been developed with The Decorators, a collective of designers based in the borough, which has a track record in working with local communities.

Residents from the Geffrye estate and Lea View House Estate get involved in Hackney Homes' fun days

Summer lovin'

“Hackney Homes' fun days are always a great way for residents to get together”

OVER 150 residents turned out for the first in a series of Hackney Homes summer fun days.

Residents of the Geffrye Estate, Shoreditch, enjoyed a fun-packed afternoon of face-painting, soft-play activities, circus skills and Zumba on 1 August.

Visitors also had the opportunity to speak to Hackney Homes staff about repairs, leaseholder issues and recycling. Representatives from the charity Shelter were also on hand to promote a scheme which provides support to families at risk of homelessness.

Janice Ison, chair of the Stanway, Geffrye Estate, Tenants Residents' Association (TRA), said: “It was an amazing day. The whole community got involved and our TRA even managed to recruit some new members.”

The second fun day was held at Lea View House Estate, E5, on 8 August. Along with the many activities provided by children's charity Albion Kids Show, residents were also treated to foosball and golf-putting competitions.

Staff from Hackney Community College attended to talk about local opportunities in education, while the Volunteer Centre Hackney promoted its volunteering scheme.

A consultation on the proposal to return the management of local authority housing stock from Hackney Homes to the Council was also launched on the day by Cllr Philip Glanville, Cabinet Member for Housing, and Rupert Tyson, Chair of the Hackney Homes Board.

The consultation runs until 31 October. For more info, visit: www.hackneyhomes.org.uk/consultation

Rupert Tyson said: “Hackney Homes' fun days are always a great way for residents to get together and this year has been no different. Launching the consultation at this event was a perfect opportunity to raise awareness and encourage residents and leaseholders to take part.”

A new tennis wall has been installed at the Young Hackney Concorde Centre, in Homerton

Match point

A TASTE of Wimbledon has come to Hackney with the installation of a new tennis wall at the Young Hackney Concorde Centre in Homerton.

The REBOwall is a slanted, Astroturf-covered surface which allows young people to develop their serve and volley alone, play against a partner, or under the guidance of a coach.

It is just one of the many free activities on offer at the centre, which was redeveloped as part of a £5million Council investment in youth facilities across the borough.

Concorde is a community hotspot for those aged eight to 19, and specialises in sports and healthy living. Young people can enjoy football, free weights, table tennis, girls' gym and fitness sessions, tennis, track cycling and BMXing, and cooking workshops.

Trampolining courses and girls-only martial arts

“ Sport is a great way to boost confidence, learn new things... and works wonders for health and fitness ”

Free bicycle sessions and maintenance classes at Concorde Youth hub are also scheduled to start in the autumn. One of the most popular draws is the centre's cycling hub, which offers free bicycle sessions and maintenance classes on Wednesday afternoons between 4.30 and 5.30pm.

The workshop was developed as a project between the Council, Hackney Marsh Partnership, Cycling Club Hackney, Interlinx, Hackney BMX and Sanctuary Housing.

Kevin, 13, who is part of Cycling Club Hackney, said: “Cycling is a way to keep involved and fit, and stay away from trouble. We've gone to the Velodrome and Velopark, as well as Epping Forest to ride off-road.”

In addition, the cycling hub is a base for the Kingswheels project, a twice-weekly drop-in session, every Monday and Saturday from 9.30 to 11.30am, for Kingsmead residents of all ages to learn how to cycle and look after a bike.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “With the last of the tennis season's grand slams underway, young people interested in taking up the sport can now enjoy the world's first Wimbledon-inspired rebound wall at Concorde. But this is just one of a whole host of activities available for young people to enjoy and keep them off the streets.

“Sport is a great way to boost confidence, learn new things, and of course it works wonders for health and fitness.”

News in brief

Go-ahead for Colville towers

TWO residential tower blocks have been granted planning permission to help fund the rebuilding of much-needed new homes for social renting on a Hoxton estate. The third phase of the Council's regeneration of the Colville Estate will be made up of two 16 to 20 storey towers containing 198 homes for private sale. These will pay for the cost of replacing 338 aging, uneconomical-to-refurbish existing Council homes for social renting on the site next to Shoreditch Park.

The Colville Estate Tenants and Residents Association (CETRA) supported the planning application which was approved on 30 July.

Facilities such as a new community centre, public square, community garden, space for shops and businesses, and the potential for local apprenticeships on the construction site are all part of the vision for Colville's regeneration.

Tenants have a right to return, with leaseholders offered a package of local options, including shared equity.

Community grants available

VOLUNTARY and community groups can now apply for grants of up to £40,000 for projects that will benefit residents.

The Hackney Voluntary and Community Sector Grants programme is now open to initiatives that will be delivered in 2015/16.

Funding of between £5,000 and £40,000 can be claimed for projects which focus on reducing poverty; raising aspirations; promoting healthy living; making the borough safer; promoting mixed communities; or increasing community pride. In addition, holiday play scheme grants of up to £8,000 are on offer.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “The Council's grants programme is there to provide funding to support voluntary and community sector organisations in the valuable work that they do. If you think your group or organisation might meet the criteria, then I would encourage you to apply for our grants.”

Applications are being accepted until 19 September.

The Daly show

Artist, designer and bar owner Paul Daly at his bar Zigfrid in Hoxton Square

FORMER band member turned designer and bar owner, Paul Daly, has lived in Hoxton since the 1980s and would not dream of living anywhere else in London.

His story reflects that of the area itself, which has been transformed over the past 30 years from post industrial wasteland to an arts and nightlife mecca.

Paul studied fine art at Goldsmiths College, where he met Gary Hume and Sarah Lucas, who went on to achieve international renown as part of the Young British Artist group, which evolved from the East London arts scene. They moved to Hackney in 1988 after finding a derelict building in Hoxton Square to squat.

Paul recalls: "I was really interested in property and in the area. What attracted me to Hoxton was that “There is no better borough. Where else in London has all this? Hackney is the greatest place in the world” we needed somewhere to make art, and this place was derelict, so we all migrated here. When we first came to Hackney we thought we were going to get robbed – there was nobody here! It was nothing like it is now.

"Nobody came here to go out until 1993. We were here for five years before then making art. There was just the Bass Clef jazz club in the square where Sarah Lucas worked as a waitress."

By the 1990s things were changing, a number of pioneering clubs set up shop around Old Street, inspired by the DIY rave scene, and fuelled by the expanding community of artists, designers and web geeks that were drawn to the area.

Paul went legit, buying the squat building and converting it into Zigfrid in 2003. It was in the pioneering wave of bars, clubs and restaurants, that now surround Hoxton Square, that sparked the Shoreditch nightlife scene.

Originally from Dublin, Paul spent five years in Zambia and Ghana in the 1970s, while his father worked for various African airlines.

He played in a number of bands in Dublin in the 1980s, but found there weren't that many live music venues to play at. It was this that inspired him to build a live music space downstairs at Zigfrid von Underbelly, which opened in 2005.

Then in 2008, he opened Roadtrip in Old Street. The bar was later extended to contain a music venue, The Workshop.

Having studied metalwork and design, as well as art, Paul was well equipped to design and fit out the unique interiors of his venues.

Paul jokes he's the only member of the class of 88 still living in Hackney. So why does he continue to be based here?

He says: "There's no better borough. Where else in London has all this? It's the greatest place in the world ... apart from Dublin!"

Before and after images of Nancy Gbegbaje's garden after young offenders cleared it of weeds and undergrowth

Fresh start for all

A NEW project has transformed the gardens – and lives – of elderly and disabled residents, as well as young offenders.

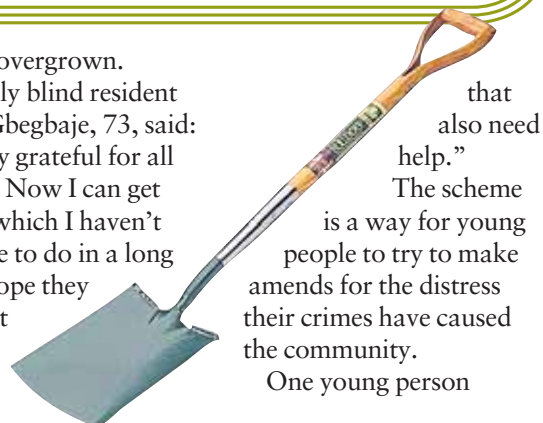

Charity Skyway, the Council, and Hackney Homes have teamed up to provide a gardening service which sees young offenders help elderly and disabled residents as part of court ordered community service.

The scheme has benefited those who are unable to maintain their gardens themselves, freeing up outdoor space that had become overgrown.

Partially blind resident Nancy Gbegbaje, 73, said: “I’m very grateful for all the help. Now I can get outside which I haven’t been able to do in a long time. I hope they can assist other people

“I’m very grateful for all the help. Now I can get outside which I haven’t been able to do in a long time” that also need help.” The scheme is a way for young people to try to make amends for the distress their crimes have caused the community. One young person involved said: “I really liked helping Ms Agnes. She reminds of my grandmother so I really felt like I wanted to help her. It is also good to see how the garden looks now – when we started it didn’t look like we’d ever finish.”

News in brief

Cut bills in half with grants for home energy improvements

A NEW £6.5million scheme that creates a one-stop shop for home energy improvements, and helps the owners pay for them, has been launched in Hackney.

The Smart Homes project offers residents across Hackney and five other North London boroughs, easy access to grants of up to £6,000 for major green upgrades to their home – such as solid wall insulation – as well as subsidised energy assessments.

The grants focus on Victorian and Edwardian terrace properties where simple, cheap energy upgrades can be difficult because of the period architecture.

Backed by the Green Deal Communities Fund, the scheme is the first of its kind in the country and aims to make it simpler and more affordable for homeowners to carry out upgrades that could cut their energy bills in half. Unlike previous national schemes, residents will be able to arrange all the assessments, finances and work through one firm, reducing the hassle of dealing with scores of different suppliers and installation companies. Wherever possible the project will use local firms.

The project is expected to be of benefit to around 1,600 households in Hackney, Haringey, Camden, Enfield, Islington and Waltham Forest. It will initially run for one year, depending on demand.

For more information and to apply for an assessment, contact the advice line, from 9am to 7pm, Monday to Friday, on: 020 7527 4736; or visit:

Crowdfunding campaign launched for new community space on Hackney estate

Morland estate residents want to see the outdoor area improved

RESIDENTS of Morland Estate in London Fields are raising money to transform a large outdoor space into an imaginative garden.

The Morland’s Growing Community project is a grassroots initiative which hopes to turn the unused space into an orchard and play area with cycle parking and seating.

Residents have already drawn up architectural plans with the help of Trees for Cities, a charity set up to plant more greenery in London. They are now working with Hackney Homes, which manages the estate, to finalise the plans.

The finished garden will contain raised plant beds, a community orchard with 10 fruit trees, seating and a natural play area to connect children with nature.

One resident said: “My girls love the idea of fruit trees, plants and raised beds to attract wildlife. It’ll be good for children to see how things grow and need nurturing.”

Residents aim to raise £10,000 for the project through a crowdfunding campaign. Supporters can pledge as little as £2 at: www.spacehive.com/morlandsgrowing

They have until 20 October to reach the fundraising target.

Oliva Tweest

6-7 Sep, Hackney Empire, 291 Mare Street, E8 1EJ

AFROBEATS musical 'Oliva Tweest', inspired by award-winning Nigerian pop star D'Banj and his hit single 'Oliver Twist', is set to show at Hackney Empire on 6 and 7 of September.

Following a sold-out debut show in the West End last April, 'Oliva Tweest' consists of clever renditions of popular Afrobeats songs by artists such as Fuse ODG, Wizkid, Davido and more.

Written by resident Nana Duncan, 'Oliva Tweest' is based on the classic Charles Dickens tale, with a modern slant: a cocky and promiscuous young man, Tobi, tries everything he can to get the attention of a female singer. In his attempts he uncovers her world of lies, ambitions and parental pressure. With professional dancers and a live band accompanying the dialogue, 'Oliva Tweest' is a celebration of Afrobeats music.

Competitions

Hackney Today offered readers a chance to win tickets to Little Revolution in issue 337.

The lucky winner was E Mills, N4.

By Sally England

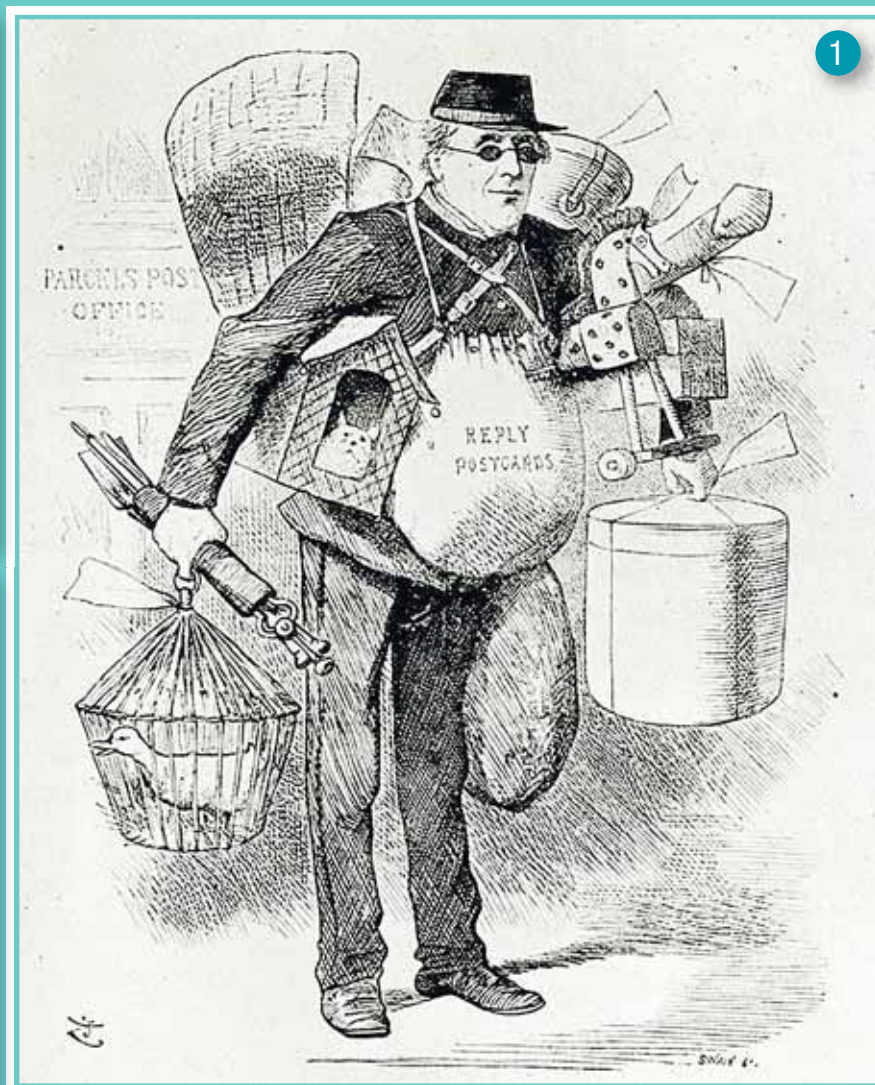

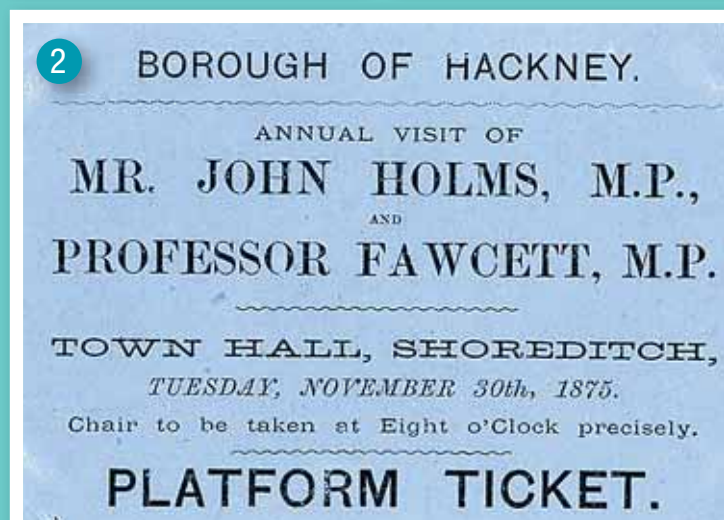

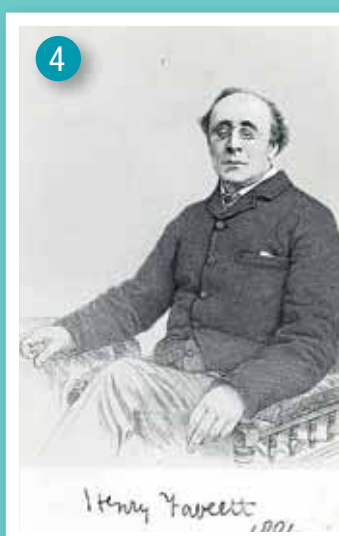

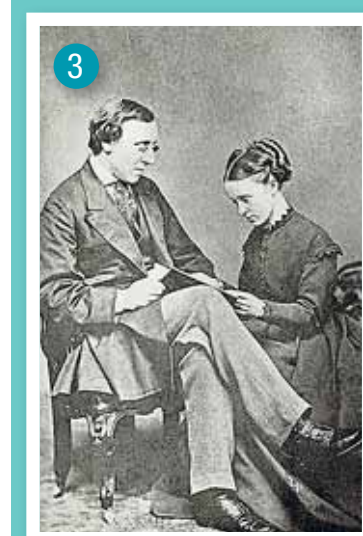

PROFESSOR Henry Fawcett was the first blind Member of Parliament. Shot in the eyes as a young man, he later became Hackney's second MP.

Fawcett was born on 26 August 1833, in Salisbury, the son of a draper and the Liberal mayor of the Wiltshire town. He studied Mathematics, Economics and Law at Cambridge where he was influenced by the radical views of Jeremy Bentham and John Stuart Mill, and planned to enter politics via a career at the bar.

Over six feet tall, Fawcett was a keen sportsman and rower, but all this was to change after a tragic accident in September 1858 left him completely blind. He had been shooting partridge with his father, who suffered from poor sight due to cataracts, when the elder man forgot that his son had walked ahead and aimed at a bird in front of him. Henry was peppered with shot, most of it stopped by his thick coat, but two fragments flew higher and pierced his eyeballs, causing irreparable damage.

Aged only 25, and now prevented from studying law as he was unable to read, Fawcett was determined from the outset that his blindness would not hamper him however. Instead of going into politics via the law he forged a path from academia, becoming widely known through writing, speaking and debate. He returned to Cambridge early in 1859, his studies turning to Political Economy, becoming a professor of the subject in 1863.

The 1860s also saw him standing for election in Southwark and Cambridge, but he failed to win either seat. In fact, his own Liberal party managers were initially not confident of his prospects, one of them commenting 'Unknown, blind and not rich, was there ever such a madman?'

Fawcett was undeterred however, training himself to memorise documents and data, developing remarkable abilities of concentration, organisation and memory. He proved extremely popular with the public at meetings, partly because of his strength of mind to overcome his difficulties, and also because of his championing reforming social policies.

He finally won a seat in Brighton in 1865, taking a large majority, and in the same year proposed to Elizabeth Garrett, the first female physician to train and practice in Britain. She refused his offer although they remained life-long friends. Eventually Fawcett married one of her younger sisters, Millicent, in 1867. They went on to become one of the most celebrated couples of the era, sharing a commitment to feminism, with Millicent playing a leading public role in the fight for women's suffrage.

At the general election of 1874, Fawcett lost his Brighton seat when Disraeli led the Conservatives into Government, but two months later he was elected to the safe Liberal seat of Hackney. Gladstone and the Liberals regained control of the country in 1880 and Fawcett was subsequently made Post Master General.

Able to envisage how the Post Office could bring wide economic and social benefits, Fawcett made a number of important reforms, including allowing small deposits to be made into the Post Office Savings Bank, greatly benefiting those on low wages.

He lowered the charge for sending a telegram and expanded the service to small towns and rural areas. He also increased the number of pillar boxes, introduced postal services at railway stations, and pioneered the use of indicators on post boxes to show collection times.

One of his most significant introductions was parcel post, which began in August 1882. At first there was considerable opposition to the idea from railway companies and even the Treasury, which doubted that the system could be profitable. But Fawcett himself was very excited by 'the smartly painted red vans' and especially 'the extraordinary variety of objects posted', as was humorously shown by a cartoon in the satirical magazine 'Punch'. By the end of the first year over 20 million parcels had been delivered.

Henry Fawcett held his Hackney seat until his sudden death on 6 November 1884 after a cold developed into pleurisy. He died in Cambridge with his beloved wife Millicent and sister-in-law Elizabeth at his bedside. His passing was mourned as much by the lower classes for whom he had worked so hard as it was by his fellow MPs. His connection with Hackney is today commemorated in the name of the Fawcett Estate at Clapton Common.

A HACKNEY football team fought off tough competition from 15 other squads from across London to claim victory in the Eid Cup.

The Pembury Squad, made up of young people who attend Peabody's Pembury Estate Youth Club, won the tournament on 2 August. They only had two days to prepare after hearing about the competition prior to coming runners-up in another tournament.

The Eid Cup was first organised in 2007 as a positive community event to bring residents together with members of the armed forces and police after the 7/7 London bombings.

The six-a-side tournament has become a flagship event, engaging over 4,000 children, young people and adults in the past eight years.

Peabody youth worker and football coach Raldy Patrick, based at Pembury Community Centre, said: "We didn't have long to prepare and the fact that the team won is a great testament to them."

"They got to showcase their talent and prove to themselves that they can achieve whatever they put their minds to."

Become a 'grandmentor' to young people in Hackney

A CHARITY that enables people to take more of an active role in their community is recruiting Hackney volunteers to help young people gain useful skills.

'Grandmentors', an initiative by UK volunteering and social action charity CSV, needs over-50s to support young people in the borough into education and employment, or help those aged 16 to 25 develop more practical skills.

Mentors will be required to provide on-going support for at least six months. Hours are flexible and mentors can work weekly or fortnightly. The only requirement is that applicants want to make a difference to a young person's life.

Anyone interested in becoming a mentor should e-mail: grandmentors@csv.org.uk; or call: 020 7643 1346.

Mapping young Hackney

HACKNEY Homes has joined forces with the Council to launch an interactive map showing the array of youth services available across the borough.

Over the last two years, the joint venture has seen staff contact all known statutory and voluntary youth service providers in Hackney in order to map out all the activity timetables and services for young residents.

The search portal, which sits on the Young Hackney website, allows visitors to find activities tailored to their location and interests.

'Writing Home' marks the centenary of the First World War

THE Geffrye Museum is set to run a year-long project which focuses on the life of Private Arthur Webb, who died 10 days before the end of the First World War.

The Hoxton museum was awarded £8,600 by the Heritage Lottery Fund for 'Writing Home', a project which aims to engage young people by giving them an insight into how families like Private Webb's lived at the time. Arthur joined the Machine Gun Corps in 1914 and was killed when he was just 20-years-old.

His personal belongings, including letters sent to his sister from the front line, alongside the museum's 1910 period room, will be used to explore the stories of those left behind and the impact the war had on everyday life.

'Writing Home', which begins in September, will include a theatre-in-education session, an exhibition of children's written work, and a family day for 14 to 24-year-olds to develop their understanding of the conflict.

Janice Welch, interim head of learning at the Geffrye Museum, said: "The project will actively encourage participants to learn more about the First World War and develop new skills."

Clissold Park is one of the first green spaces in the country to introduce smoke-free zones in areas used by children

Smoke-free zone in park

A HACKNEY park is one of the first green spaces in the country to introduce smoke-free zones in all areas used extensively by children.

New signs now ask visitors to not smoke in the pleasure gardens, outdoor classroom, paddling pool, animal enclosures and dog-free areas of Clissold Park.

The pioneering initiative builds on a smoking ban which is already operating successfully in the 13 children's play areas in Hackney's 17 Green Flag parks.

Clissold Park User Group has supported the Residents can enjoy a day out without having their children subjected to second-hand smoke move which aims to help protect youngsters from the dangers of smoking.

The Council now wants to work with more user groups to identify potential smoke-free areas in its other major parks.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "People will still be able to smoke in the park, but residents can also enjoy a day out without having their children subjected to second-hand smoke or being influenced by seeing others do it.

"The smoking ban is voluntary, just like in children's play areas where it has enjoyed great success, and we know we can rely on the goodwill of our park users to respect it.

"Smoking-related illnesses remain some of the biggest killers in Hackney, but it's never too late for smokers to give up."

The Council's latest statistics show a quarter of over-18s in the borough smoke. Each year in Hackney, an estimated 200 people die prematurely from a smoking-related disease, and around 1,500 are admitted to hospital due to smoking-associated health problems.

Become a 'bump buddy' and mentor pregnant women

VOLUNTEERS are needed to join a dedicated team of mums who have been trained to mentor vulnerable pregnant women in Hackney. The 'bump buddies' programme supports expectant mothers throughout pregnancy and early parenthood by helping them make healthier choices, offering information, and guiding them to maternity services.

Volunteer bump buddy Ingrid said: "For me being a bump buddy is about meeting wonderful people. Honestly, you become very close and that's definitely the best part – seeing friends turn into family."

Issues which might affect women in pregnancy include loneliness, lone parenting, language barriers, disability, domestic violence, ill health and poor diet, mental health issues, risk of homelessness and financial instability. To find out more about becoming a bump buddy, call: 020 7033 8568; or go to: <http://shoreditchtrust.org.uk/bump-buddies/be-a-buddy>

Warm home discount scheme

RESIDENTS may be qualified to receive a one-off payment of up to £140 on their electricity bills.

The Warm Home Discount (WHD) scheme is a Government-backed programme administered by energy suppliers to provide rebates on the electricity bills of households that need it most.

Those eligible to apply include some Pension Credit customers and some residents on a low income.

Tim Hendry, from Hackney Energy Advice Line, said: "Winter fuel bills might not be top of your priority list in this great weather, but we don't want people to miss out so phone now to find out if you're eligible."

Estimates show that there are thousands of residents who qualify for the WHD but do not claim it.

More funding given to the HENRY programme to help tackle childhood obesity

MORE parents in Hackney will be able to benefit from expert help to get their children off to the best start in life after a health programme received new Government funding.

The Health Exercise Nutrition for the Really Young (HENRY) scheme is an innovative way of supporting families to make healthy choices for their young children.

The eight week programme has been running in four children's centres in the borough as part of the Get Hackney Healthy Campaign to tackle the underlying causes of childhood obesity.

The new funding will last for three years and will enable the team to train additional community volunteers to become healthy start mentors. They work one-to-one with families in Hackney to provide support and information about healthy food and exercise right at the start of children's lives.

The programme was designed by expert nutritionists and has been proven to tackle childhood obesity by instilling healthy behaviours from a young age before bad habits are established.

To find out more about how to join a HENRY programme, call Susie Longford on: 020 7683 4098.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sharon Patrick.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust
www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

IN this edition, Shoreditch Trust presents a recipe from its healthy eating programme which aims to help residents produce healthy, tasty and seasonal food throughout the year. The main season for peaches is from July to September and they make a delicious addition to a summer cake. Although peaches get softer after picking, their flavours only develop on the tree, so avoid very hard peaches as they will never taste that good. We've adapted this recipe to make it healthier. Adding fruit to cakes means that you can reduce the amount of sugar you bake with. Peaches not only add sweetness, but also vitamins, minerals and fibre.

Rustic peach cake

Makes 10 servings

Preparation time 25 mins
Cooking time 45 mins

Ingredients

- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 tbs light brown sugar
- 2 medium peaches
- 160g plain flour (half wholemeal/half white)
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 100g unsalted butter, at room temperature
- 70g light brown sugar
- 2 large eggs, at room temperature
- 3 tablespoons yoghurt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

- Combine the tablespoon of sugar and half a teaspoon of cinnamon in a medium-sized bowl. Pitt and chop the peaches into eight wedges and add to the mixture, tossing the wedges to coat them
- In a bowl, sift the flour and baking powder together. Cream the butter and remaining 70g of sugar until the mixture is light and fluffy. Add the eggs, yoghurt and vanilla and beat to incorporate, then add the flour mixture a little at a time until it has just combined
- Transfer the batter to the prepared pan and spread in an even layer. Arrange the peach wedges in a circular pattern and sprinkle the remaining half teaspoon of cinnamon on top
- Bake for 35 to 45 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted in the centre of the cake comes out clean. Cool for at least an hour before serving. The cake can be stored (well wrapped) at room temperature for two days.

Method

- Preheat oven to 170C. Grease a nine-inch cake tin then dust lightly with flour

Have your say on how to improve air quality in Hackney

RESIDENTS can help make Hackney one of the cleanest boroughs in London by taking part in a survey.

The Council wants to know local people's views as part of drawing up its Air Quality Action Plan, which sets out how it aims to improve air quality in the borough over the next four years.

Reducing pollution at junction hotspots; delivering cycling and walking campaigns; helping businesses work together to reduce pollutants; and tackling idling taxis are just some of the ways the Council hopes to cut harmful nitrogen dioxide emissions in the borough.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said:

"Nitrogen dioxide exceeds national air quality guidelines in many parts of the borough.

"Air quality knows no boundaries and it's up to all of us to make a difference. We need to work together to help make Hackney one of the cleanest, greenest and most attractive places to live, work and visit in London. Take part in this survey and help shape a better future for Hackney."

Other ideas under discussion include cutting children's exposure to poor air quality, reducing the Council's impact on air quality, and levying building projects to help pay for cleaner air initiatives.

No objections to the order were received within the permitted period and consequently notification was given by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government that the power to confirm the order may be exercised by the acquiring authority in accordance with section 14A of the Acquisition of Land Act 1981.
- 2 The order as confirmed provides for the purchase for the purposes of facilitating the carrying out of development, redevelopment and improvement of the land for the provision of new residential dwellings and associated landscaping which are likely to contribute to achieving the promotion or improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of the area of the land described in the Schedule hereto.
- 3 A copy of the order as confirmed by the London Borough of Hackney and of the map referred to therein have been deposited at the Council's offices London Borough of Hackney of Town Hall, Mare Street, London E8 1EA and may be seen at all reasonable hours.
- 4 The order as confirmed becomes operative on the date on which this Notice is first published. A person aggrieved by the order may, by application to the High Court within 6 weeks from that date, challenge its validity under Section 23 of the Acquisition of Land Act 1981. PRELIMINARY NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MAKE GENERAL VESTING DECLARATION

Statement of effect of parts ii and iii of the Compulsory Purchase (Vesting Declarations) Act 1981

THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY (AIKIN COURT) COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER 2014

PART 1

Power to make general vesting declaration

- 1 The London Borough of Hackney (hereinafter called "the Council") may acquire any of the land described in the Schedule above by making a general vesting declaration under section 4 of the Compulsory Purchase (Vesting Declarations) Act 1981. This has the effect, subject to paragraph 4 below, of vesting the land in the Council at the end of the period mentioned in paragraph 2 below. A declaration may not be made before the end of a period of two months from the first publication of a notice which includes this statement except with the consent in writing of every occupier of the land affected.

Notices concerning general vesting declaration

- 2 As soon as may be after the Council make a general vesting declaration, they must serve notice of it on every occupier of any of the land specified in the declaration (except land where there is one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) and on every person who gives them information relating to the land in pursuance of the invitation contained in any notice. When the service of notices of the general vesting declaration is completed, a further period begins to run. This period, which must not be less than 28 days, will be specified in the declaration. On the first day after the end of this period ("the vesting date") the land described in the declaration will, subject to what is said in paragraph 4, vest in the Council together with the right to enter on the land and take possession of it. Every person on whom the Council could have served a notice to treat in respect of his interest in the land (other than a tenant under one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) will be entitled to claim compensation for the acquisition of his interest in the land, with interest on the compensation from the vesting date.

Modifications with respect to certain tenancies

- 3 In the case of certain tenancies, the position stated above is subject to modifications. The modifications apply where the tenancy is either a "minor tenancy" i.e. a tenancy for a year or a yearly tenancy or a lesser interest, or "a long tenancy which is about to expire". The latter expression means a tenancy granted for an interest greater than a minor tenancy but having on the vesting date a period still to run which is not more than the period specified in the declaration for this purpose (which must not be more than a year). In calculating how long a tenancy has still to run, where an option to renew or to terminate it is available to either party, it shall be assumed that the landlord will take every opportunity open to him to terminate the tenancy while the tenant will use every opportunity to retain or renew his interest.
- 4 The modifications are that the Council may not exercise the right of entry referred to in paragraph 2 in respect of land subject to a tenancy described in paragraph 3 unless they first serve a notice to treat in respect of the tenancy and then serve every occupier of the land with a notice of their intention to enter and take possession after the period (not less than 14 days from the service of the notice) specified in the notice. The right of entry will be exercisable at the end of that period. The vesting of the land will be subject to the tenancy until the end of that period or until the tenancy comes to an end, whichever happens first.
